Amiga '99

Make your plans

[Editor's Note: Since the Amiga '99 show is the closest large-scale Amiga show to the Metroplex, I thought I should include this notice for those of you who might be planning to attend again this year or for those who might attend if they had advance notice. St. Louis is only a 600 mile drive from here or, if you're flying, the price is much more reasonable than it is to someplace like Germany. Last year's show was attended by several club members and the information they returned with was very valuable for those of us who stayed at home. No doubt it's even better being there.]

The Amiga 99 Banquet tickets, for the March 13 Banquet, are now available. Cost is $35 each plus an admission ticket to the show. Banquet tickets must be ordered in advance. No banquet tickets may be sold at the show, due to the hotel requiring advance notice of the number of people attending. Stay tuned for the list of guest speakers. Once the speakers are announced, tickets will go fast.

Although we have more room than last year, seating is limited. Unlike last year, we will only accomodate the number we can comfortably seat in the room, so order your tickets early.

Please note that there are no refunds on tickets.

The Net Connection

After last month's flood of information about QNX being chosen as the kernal for the next generation Amiga, this month seems a little lean. But there's still a lot of good information available.

- Protecting your ISP User Name and Password — Invaluable information from Nordic Global Inc., makers of Miami
- DKB Wildfire 060 — Review of the A2000 accelerator
- Ariadne II — Review of the Ethernet card for the A2000, A3000 and A4000 computers
- IBrowse — Latest word on progress toward the new version
- Picks of the Month — My picks of the best new files of the month... with downloads
- Great Truths About Life — Bonus humor for the month
